MINERS TRAPPED IN WEST VIRGINIA MINE!

NEW OUTBURST AT LIBERTY SAT. NIGHT

Soldiers Fired Upon by Striking Miners In Hills

NO ONE IS HURT

Hundred Men Working—Hearing of Ejection Injunction Set for Wednesday at Richmond

Smoldering sparks of warfare between miners at the Liberty Coal and Coke company mines at Straight Creek and persons opposed to the mining operations again broke forth into a blaze Saturday night. A score or more of shots were fired at the troops guarding the mining property.

A detail of soldiers was doing guard duty at the drift-mouth of the mine when three shots were fired from the hills. While the men were crossing the bridge nearby, five more pistol or rifle shots were fired.

Capt. Dillion, in charge of the troops who was in Pineville at the time, was notified at once and, accompanied by Sheriff Martin Green, he hurried to the place. A number of other shots were fired to which the soldiers replied with a volley from the machine guns. No one was hurt, according to reports.

One of the officials stated today that some drunk men were reported in that vicinity Saturday night and that they might have fired the shots. Quiet now pervades the camp and operations are in progress with increasing volume. One hundred men are now working full time in the mines and the working crew is being augmented almost daily by new men.

Hearing on motion of the Liberty Coal and Coke company for a temporary injunction against the United Mine Workers of America, District 19, the Straight Creek Local and individual miners, preventing them from housing in company settlements and from interfering with company business, was set by Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran for Wednesday, April 30.

The hearing was granted on an amended and supplemental bill of complaint filed by the company. The bill sets forth that about 180 dwelling houses have been constructed on its property in Bell county near the Straight Creek postoffice to house the miners or coldiggers, and that the property is worth $900,000.

As long as the miners named in the petition, occupy the houses, the company will be unable to obtain a full force of employes to operate its mines the twellers "in terrorizing" persons attempting to enter into company employ.

The bill for the amended petition lists a number of cases of terrorizing which it alleges the enemies of the non union miners and the mining officials were responsible for.

An injunctionis already in existence which prohibits the interference of the workers or mining property by union miners or sympathizers but the amended injunction would be broader in scope. According to mine officials it will prevent petty aggravation of the trouble such as calling the workers "scabs" which union sympathizers are reported as having done.

Hearing on the petition for the amended injunction will take place at Richmond.

NORSE CONTINUE COD SHOAL HUNT

Norwegian Fishery Department Continue Search About Spitzbergen

CHRISTIANA, April 28.—The investigations which were commenced last year by the Norwegian Fishery Department to discover the whereabouts of the great cod shoals are to be continued this summer.

Further areas about Spitbergen will be subjected to examination and in addition to the official expedition it is probable that more than one expedition will be undertaken as a result of municipal or private initiative. In the Province of Sondmore plans are being prepared for the despatch of an expedition to Western Greenland to search for cod. Sealers who have returned from that region report the presence of large quantities about the banks.

EDITORS MEXICO BOUND WILL STOP IN OKLAHOMA

Pageants Will Greet the Press Boys on Trip

BUFFALO MEAT

Wild West Rodeo and Plain and Fancy Roping to be Features for Group

By Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Apr. 28.—Members of the National Editorial association, who will visit Oklahoma in May en route to Mexico where they will go as a feature of their annual convention, are to be shown the mingling of the old and the new that characterizes the southwest.

Pageants that bring back the days when not so long ago bands of Indians roamed the hills and prairies of the state will affofd a contrast of the forests of derricks, the busy refining districts and the expanses of agricultural land and the up-to-date towns and cities through which the visitors will be taken.

Entering the state May 19 from Kansas City, Mo., the concentration point, the editors' special train will stop first at Ponca City, home of the Morland oil company, with its large refining plant and the nearest city of the well-known 101 Ranch, a private reservation on which are observed today some of the old habits of the Indian country.

A barbecue of buffalo meat, a rodeo in which the leaders in the roping and riding world will compete, and an Indian pageant participated in by members of the Cheyenne, Choctaw, Arapahoe, Wiowa, Comanche, Cherokee, Osage, Sioux and several lesser tribes, will await the visitors. The next day will be spent in Tulsa where several of the largest oil refineries in the world will be inspected.

At Bristow on May 21, Gov. M. E. Trapp will welcome the editors in behalf of the state and Ed Ingram, president of the Oklahoma Editorial association, will extend the welcome of the Oklahoma editors, who are hosts to the visitors newspapermen during their stay in Oklahoma. Near Bristow the editors will have their first close-up view of an oil field. Every operation of oil drilling will be demonstrated and a well actually "coming in" is to be one of the features of the visit to the Bristow pool.

The editors will be in Oklahoma City May 22, 23 and part of May 24. Business sessions will be held here, one in the senate chamber at the state capitol. From Oklahoma City, the editorial caravan will move to El Reno and Fort Reno, army remount depot, where a polo match will be staged by army officers. Lawton, Fort Sill and Wichita National park are next on the itinerary.

At Fort Sill every arm of the military service will be employed in a sham battle May 26. Fifty airplanes, including squadrons from Fort Sam Houston, Fort Riley and other army posts will take part. A mountain slide will be the objective of the pretended attack. Behind a barrage of live shells laid down by every type of field gun used in the United States army, battalions of infantry will sweep forward. The editors will view the battle with binoculars from another mountain side.

In this display the army will demonstrate for the first time, it is said, the use of chemical bombs dropped from airplanes which will raise a smoke screen.

The editors will go from Fort Sill to Fort Worth, Texas.

This case was particularly important to the chiropractors in the state as it served as a test case.

SKYSCRAPER BOSSING IS JOB OF WOMEN

RUN HIGH ONES

Women Managers of Office Buildings in a Number of the Larger Cities

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Apr. 28.—Women has made good in another profession, hitherto regarded as strictly masculine, according to the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, which lists ten women among the owners and managers who are members of the organization.

Where some women are managing skyscrapers in seven large American cities, they have made good because of their feminine characteristics of sympathy and motherhood, the national board believes, but in other cases success has been founded "solely upon being able to handle business as any business man would."

In Chicago Miss Clara C. Cramer manages two buildings, the City Hall Square building, which is 21 stories high, and the Garland building, which is only a little less tall and upon which aditional stories are being built under the personal supervision of Miss Cramer.

Seattle is the home of Mrs. L. A. Ellis, owner of the Washington Improvement Company. The far western city has another feminine skyscraper boss in the person of Mrs. W. Bramley of the Yukon Investment Company.

Miss Alma Nagel of Davenport is not only manager, but also secretary and treasurer of the Lane and Whitaker buildings and Miss Gladys M. Ellis of Kansas City, is manager and secretary of an estate which gives her jurisdiction over the Finance and Curtis Buildings. In Omaha, Mrs. H. R. Nelson is another manager of an estate which includes the Brown building. In the same city, Miss Helen M. Porter is a recognized member of the profesion of building manager.

California has three women managing great office buildings. They are Mrs. M. L. Stone of Oakland, Hutchinson building; Miss Lilly E. Tufts, Physicians building, San Francisco, and Miss Elizabeth Bond, Whitley building, San Francisco.

Discarded Coolidge Headgear Travels —Is of the Vintage of 1916

BERKELEY, Calif., April 28.—Derby hats have been "stylish" during the past few months, but President Coolidge wore one back in 1916.

This derby bearing the name "Calvin Coolidge" and date of November 2, 1916, was resurrected for the annual derby day of the College of Commerce of the University of California. It was found in a San Francisco second hand store where students went to purchase all the derbies they could find for their celebration. The second hand dealer said the man he bought it from, a tramp, said the hat had been given him by Mrs. Coolidge together with somecother clothes soon after the Boston police strike.

TAKE TO GERMAN ART AND MUSIC

Paris no Longer Angered at Wagnerian Harmony, Pictures and Books

Associated Press

PARIS, April 28.—Germans and German products are coming back to Paris and France, and their return causes less fuss and protest as each step becomes known.

German music came first. Within a year after the armistice Wagner was played at the Opera and in big concerts to occasional stormy scenes and many catcalls and hisses. Soon it was accepted without comment.

The proposal to have Max Reinhardt stage some of his German successes at the Odeon, a government theatre, stirred up such a scene in the Chamber of Deputies that the government had to forbid the productions, but the German motion pictures have fared fairly well, although frequently criticized as being "German propaganda."

Something of the pacifist love-scene took place on the Mayence football field some months ago when a German team met a French fifteen in a match that was preceded by an exchange of flowers by the two captains.

German buying of fine wines, hats, gowns and other luxuries caused a little tempest recently, but the criticism subsided when commercial interests said the country needed all the foreign money it could get.

German art made its first appearance this week at the Independent Salon in pictures and books. The publishers wanted to price their offerings in dollars or sterling, but the French made them rentize the only money of France is the franc.

INDIANA HONORS CIVIL WAR HERO

Greathouse Lost Life at Atlanta Sixty Years Ago

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 28.—A shrine to the memory of General Lucian Greathouse, proclaimed by General William Tecumseh Sherman as the outstanding hero of the Civil War, is to be placed in the $1,000,000 war memorial Men's Union building at Indiana university.

General Sherman declared the Hoosier soldier to be the "bravest of the brave," in an official report, which said: "Where all have been so brave, it seem invidious to mention one name, but we must speak of Colonel Lucien Greathouse. He is the bravest of the brave."

General Greathouse lost his life storming a southern stronghold near Atlanta, July 22, 1863, in one of the closing campaigns of the war. He is said never to have given his men a command to "charge," but ordered "follow me."

When the Civil War broke out the general gave up the study of law and entered the Union army as a private. At the time he was killed he had been promoted to the rank of Brigadier General, the youngest to hold that commission in the history of the United States armies.

General Greathouse was born at Carlinville, Ill., in 1842.

DEER PROTECT ESKIMO BOYS FROM BEAR

U. S. Herd Boys Flee to Protection of Flock

BUCKS ON GUARD

Turn Aside Attack and Protect Herd and Keepers From Any Serious Harm

By Associated Press.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Apr. 28.—Evidence of reciprocal protection between men and animals came to light recently at Cantwell, where big reindeer herds are ranging under the supervision of the United States Biological Survey and Eskimo herders.

Several Eskimo boys had been standing guard over a herd to ward off wolves and other predatory animals. The boys were sitting idly while the herd gazed when a monster brown bear, followed closely by her yearling cub, rushed out of the woods. The boys saw no refuge and to outrun the bear was impossible. Sensing the only means of escape, they headed straight for the herd, with the mother bear in close pursuit.

The reindeer, which ordinarily would have taken the running approach of the Eskimos as a signal to move forward, scented the danger. Instead of fleeing, they turned, as is by some primitive command, and the big bucks rushed forward to meet the boys and the bears. At the same instant the does called their fawns to their sides and huddled together. The Eskimos shouldered their way into the middle of the herd, watching the elemental maneuvers of bear and reindeer.

The monarchs of the herd stood with antlers pointed forward and the bear swerved, milling up and down as if looking for an opening. The bucks turned with the motions of the bear, their sharp antlers forming a barrier of bayonets.

Finally, realizing it was impossible to snatch a fawn or an Eskimo, the great bear an dher cub retreated. The herd relaxed, and the Eskimo boys emerged to resume their vigil.

Little Hope Held for Caged Men—Wives and Children Spur on Rescuers

FOUR KNOWN DEAD

By Associated Press.

WHEELING, W. Va., Apr. 28.—Rescurers entered the mines through a recently constructed air shaft far back from the entry and discovered two miners who died shortly after being discovered. Their bodies were badly charred. This brings the known dead to four. The federal mine rescue crew said there was little hope any miners would be brought out alive.

By Associated Press.

WHEELING, W. Va., Apr. 28.—A few minutes after more than one hundred miners went to work in Benwood mine of Wheeling Steel Corporation near here a terrific explosion occured. Reports are that the blast occurred three miles back in the mine which is on fire.

All entries to the mine were blocked by debris. Four hours after the blast, volunteer rescuers were unable to enter the underground passage way.

Little hope is entertained for the trapped men who number approximately one hundred and seven according to the State Bureau of Mines. At the mine, however, it is said one hundred and twenty-five went to work and none escaped. Scores of men, women and children gathered around the mine mouth spurring rescurers in the drizzling rain.

Four colleges have been closed and it is expected that other institutions also will be closed soon. The authorities are taking means, to combat the epidemic and the commissioner at Multan has forbidden the holding of the annual religious fair at an adjacent village where thousands of people generally congregate.

LOW PRICED HORSES IN CALIFORNIA

One Sells for "Two Bits"—Seventeen Dollars is Top

By Associated Press.

ALTRUS, Cal., Apr. 28.—One horse was sold for 25 cents and 26 horses were sold for $1 each at a recent public auction held here to clear the national forest ranges of horse herds of little value. The highest price paid for any horse was $17.

The auction was arranged by officials of the Modoc National Forest. Cattle and sheep growers of the region require few horses, the automobile having replaced the broncho in all except actual range riding. Thus the surplus of horses had increased until it was a problem. Hundreds of horses were disposed of at the auction. Many others may be had almost for the asking.

FLEM D. SAMPSON FOR U. S. JUDGE

"If Kentucky Republicans do not get together soon and decide on a man for the United States Circuit Judgeship, Ohio will get into the race, with every prospect that our man will be appointed," said Senator S. D. Fess, of Ohio.

The Buckeye senator said that, in all probability, the Ohio candidate will be Provence M. Pogue, Cincinnati lawyer.

Both Senator Frank B. Willis and Senator Fess, of Ohio, agree that Kentucky is entitled to the appointment.

President Coolidge has been holding off for weeks, waiting for a unanimous Kentucky indorsement. Nearly all of the Kentuckian's who are taking an interest are for Judge Flem Sampson, of Barbourville. So far, Senator Richard P. Ernst has given no public expression as to his attitude Representative John M. Robsion led a delegation of representatives to the White House recently in Judge Sampson's behalf.

This section is wholeheartedly for Judge Sampson and the voters here should use all of their power to influence those in authority to pull for the Kentuckian for the appointment. Judge Sampson has made a remarkable public record acquitting all of his duties in a manner entirely above reproach and rising to his present prominence wholly by his own merits. He is particularly fitted for the circuit judgeship appointment and we believe he will get it.

REDUCTION OF THE PUBLIC DEBT

If the purpose of those in the present congress who have opposed the reduction of taxes, was to prevent the executive department from making the burden of taxation lighter and any further reducing of government expenses, they could not have chosen a better course to pursue than the one they have adopted and pursued.

Their object is purely political. They simply determined, not alone to prevent the government from exercising a reasonable and wise economy by reducing expenses, they went further than that, they determined that expenses should be increased, they have acted accordingly. They have added to expenses, or propose to so add, will do what they can to prevent any considerable reduction of taxation.

It is for political campaign purposes they are working, not the public interest. The reduction in governmental expenditures during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, as compared to those for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, was $1,700,000,000. The current expenses for the year were about $600,000,000 less than the department estimates. Such economies are being practiced in the present fiscal year and restrictions in expenses are still being effected.

The politicians, the mere politicians, do not want the voters to understand that such economies are being effected that would not make for them the sort of campaign material they need in their business. Hence the endeavor to find something else with which to fool the people and thus accomplish their sinister designs.

Seeing no other or better way for them to pursue they would make extraordinary retrenchments in the expenditures turger and at the same time prevent and reduction in the taxes. They saw in Secretary Mellon a man who was vitally interfering with their designs and they resolved to soil his reputation as a man and a public servant by robbing him of his good name.

But for the fact of the opposition made by the politicians, the Mellon policy would have prevailed and the country would already be reaping the benefits therefrom derived.

PINCHOT PULVERIZED

It is difficult to value correctly the influences that operate to effect an election result. There are so many things that contribute their part. The primary in Pennsylvania is no exception. The result is apparent. Gifford Pinchot has been marked for relegation to the walks of private life. He will retire from office with a record no other man has achieved. He will be the first Keystone State Republican Governor to have been denied the honor of a place on the state's delegation to his party's national convention.

The Philadelphia organization, the Pittsburg organization, the Anti-Prohibitionists, all no doubt had a hand in kicking their Governor around. Each organization can assert a strong claim, because Governor Pinchot must have been kicked from all sides. The study of causes makes interesting reading and the claims of those who were "in at the killing," together with the excuses of the Governor, serve to throw brilliant sidelights on Pennsylvania Republican politics.

There is one point, however, that has been given publicity, although without much prominence, which shows that some one is entitled to credit for having done an effective piece of political work. Whoever persuaded the Republican State Committee to adhere to the party custom of naming the Governor one of the state's delegates-at-large is that person.

It has been evident for some time that the animosity of Governor Pinchot toward President Coolidge was not pleasing to Pennsylvania Republicans and that he was labeled for punishment. Had his name been omitted from the delegates-at-large slate he could have claimed spite work by the organization and might have aroused public sympathy. By compelling him to face the Republican votes with his anti-administration record and to send him down in defeat in a canvass of less than a week, has made his condemnation a popular verdict. Even his eleventh-hour plea that he would vote for Coolidge at Cleveland could not save him. The Republicans of Pennsylvania who elected him Governor would not trust him. They doubted his sincerity and his party integrity and preferred to send in his place one who could be trusted at all times to vote the preference of the state.

Gifford Pinchot may sing any swan song he prefers. He has been repudiated by the party under whose banner he rode into office. He has been rebuked for his opposition to that party's national administration. His official political career is near its end. When he retires from the executive office at Harrisburg he will go out labeled by his party's primary as a Republican pariah.

Now that spring is here we are all seeing better days.

While speaking your mind, it is always best to mind your speaking.

The light brigade charged like thunder, and so do the gasoline men.

The difference between gloves and bathing trunks is it takes two gloves to make a pair.

The difference between many a man's last year suit and this year suit is merely a matter of time.

Thirty years ago women never thought of doing the things they do today, which may be why they didn't do them.

SHADES of RELIEF

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

THERE'S many a feller who goes to the cellar and eyes it with pleasure these days. He knows, in a minute, that certain things in it are only there now in a haze.

A nail on the wall holds a shovel and all that this shovel's expected to do is hang in its place until once more the trace of winter approaches anew.

This shovel has worked and it never has shirked as it gently scooped coal off the floor. It's black in the face but it hangs in its place 'cause the coal isn't scooped any more.

And near where some trash in a bin that held ashes is empty, and looks spick and span. There's barely a trace of what filled up the space that's been cleaned through the efforts of man.

The old furnace door does not creak any more and the heating pipes uselessly yawn. And thus winter grief turns to wondrous relief when you know that the coal days are gone.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—Like a refreshing draft of optimism, after the pessimism that has blanketed Washington during the days of oil and graft investigations, comes the cheerful hopefulness of the beer brigade.

Hopefully if not expectantly, they have descended en masse on the House Judiciary Comittee to petition and implore that the Volstead lid be lifted to permit a foaming brew which may contain up to 2.75 per cent of alcohol.

The present limit of one-half of one per cent kick in beer, they insist, is driving thousands to drink—hard drink. It is making millionaires of our bootleggers, ruining dispositions and digestions, filling asylums and graveyards and making lawbreakers of high and low alike!

Sam Gompers, champion of the workers' right to life, liberty and happiness, tells the committee that all these were infringed by the ban on beer.

Sam argued that far from having a detrimental effect on labor, a "good, palatable, nourishing beer, with warmth in it," would do more to stimulate sobriety and earnest effort and contentment than all the "uplift" work of all the social and civic agencies in Christendom.

For the convenience of the committee, 51 "beer bills," proposing modification of the Volstead percentage of alcohol, have been consolidated in the one hearing.

The drys, duly notified, are on hand to drink in the testimony and prepare for rebuttal. Mostly they are middle aged or elderly, more than half of them women. Many display W. C. T. U. ribbons, laid away in mothballs when the 18th amendment was enacted, but resurrected for the campaign to prevent any breach in the prohibition barrier.

The least conspicuous of the dry forces sits away over on the left side of the big room, a note pad on his knee, jotting down the high spots of the wet arguments.

It's Wayne B. Wheler, wheelhorse of prohibition, general counsel and director of the national Anti-Saloon League.

Judge Priest of Missouri, ruddy-faced, white-mustached, benevolent looking, who says he never drank over 'perhaps a dozen bottles of beer" in his life, but who holds he ought to have the right to drink it if he wished, argues the legal aspect of prohibition.

"It infringes both personal liberty and the rights of the states," he declares.

"But the states, including Missouri, duly ratified the amendment, didn't they?" inquires Foster of Ohio.

"Yes."

"Then the only point at issue is whether 2.75 per cent beer is within the prohibition of 'intoxicating' beverages," the chair holds.

Joseph Dorbeck of St. Louis—Missouri is well represented—tells the committee of the pathological necessity for alcohol if the human body is to live. Dorbeck is a doctor and a scientist. He presents a brief which he says proves, indisputably, that the human body has a "tolerance" for alcohol up to 3 per cent in beverages, therefore 2.75 per cent is not intoxicating.

"But," interjects Sumers of Texas in a high, querulous voice, "granting the human necessity for alcohol, doesn't the human body, if it is properly fed, produce alcohol for itself?"

"Yes," Dorbeck concedes, "the human body is a model still."

Many a man gets mad because he has to answer the phone a few times, and cusses out central who has to answer the phone all day.

Statistics show poison booze will kill about 1200 people this year and it is up to you if you are among them.

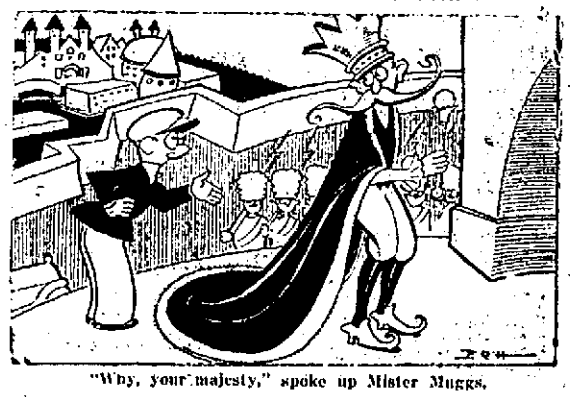
NO. 9—THE BRAVE LITTLE TAILOR



"Why, your majesty," spoke up Mister Muggs.

"Where are we going now?" asked Nancy.

"The next station in Once-Upon-a-Time Land," said Mister Muggs, "is where the Brave Little Tailor lives. He was one who killed seven flies with one swat. He was so proud of himself, he went out into the world to seek his fortune. Everywhere he went he boasted that he had killed seven at one blow, and every one thought he meant seven people. The king gave him three tasks to do, and when he succeeded in accomplishing them, the king gave him his daughter for a wife, and half of his kingdom."

Away they went over seven prairies and through seven gorges, and came at last to the Kingdom of the Brave Little Tailor.

Two castles stood on top of two hills, and running up and down the kingdom, dividing it straight into two equal parts, was a stone wall—as high and as thick as the Great Wall of China.

"What's that for?" asked Mister Muggs of a beggar standing beside the road.

"That's a spite wall," answered the beggar. "When the king found out that the man who had married his daughter was only a tailor instead of a mighty warrior, he got so mad that he had his army build the wall between the two halves of his kingdom. The tailor and his wife live in one castle and the king lives in the other."

"You don't say so!" cried Mister Muggs. "A pretty kettle of fish, I call it."

"Not fish, sir! Flies!" said the beggar. "That's really what made the king so mad. He found out that after all his boasting, his son-in-law had killed seven flies at one blow instead of seven people, as he supposed. Every time he hears something more about the way the tailor outwitted him, he has his army put another row of stones on top of the wall. It will soon be up to the sky."

"Tut, tut!" exclaimed Mister Muggs. "Nancy and Nick, we'll go and see this king and see if we can't fix things up. I always liked the Brave Little Tailor when I read about him. He was a merry fellow, and that is more than can be said for some people I know."

The little car went right up to the front door of the king's castle and at that minute the king stepped out to give an order to his army. "I've just heard something more about that tailor son-in-law of mine," he cried. "Put another row of stones on top of the wall, soldiers."

"Why, your majesty," spoke up Mister Muggs, "if it was not for the Brave Little Tailor you wouldn't be living now. He killed the two giants who would have killed you and your people, and he caught the unicorn which would have wounded you when you were hunting, and he trapped the wild boar."

"But he did it all by trickery," cried the king. "That isn't bravery."

"That's so," laughed the king, suddenly in a good humor. "Men, tear the whole wall down and go over to the other castle and invite my daughter and her tailor husband in to have lunch with me. As for you three, you'd better stay, too, and we'll make a party of it."

Old Words
(By Lawrence Lee)

Old words like gifts from many lands I bring,
Some are quaint coinage from a pirate's purse,
And one a great blue opal finger ring,
And one a dagger sharpened with a curse.

Out of the white-hulled galleon of the moon,
Riding beside the western wharf of night,
I bring you words as rare as a doubloon
Or cockatoos with ruffled crests of white.

A few are beads to please your gypsy eyes
And lend a touch of color to your art,
While some are but a cloth of silken lies
In which to steal the ruby of your heart!

LOVE IS A SICKNESS

Love is a sickness full of woes,
All remedies refusing;
A plant that with most cutting grows,
Most barren with best using.
Why so?
More we enjoy it, more it dies;
If not enjoy'd, it sighing cries,
Hey, ho!

Love is a torment of the mind,
A tempest everlasting;
And love hath made it of a kind
Not well nor full, nor fasting.
Why so?
More we enjoy it, more it dies;
If not enjoy'd, it sighing cries,
Hey, ho!

Here are six reasons why Orange-Crush is so utterly delicious: (1) The natural fruit oil of oranges —for that delicate and delightful flavor; (2) The natural acid of citrus fruits (oranges, lemons and limes) —to give the tang; (3) Orange juice —which everybody likes; (4) Carbonated water—for "zip," sparkle, purity; (5) U. S. Certified food color —to make it as appealing to the eye as to the taste; (6) Pure cane sugar.

TOURISTS TOLD TO SHUN MIDDLESBORO

Offices South of Chattanooga Apparently Uniformed on Road Conditions

Routing offices from Florida northward to Chattanooga are advising tourists to avoid Middlesboro, according to E. H. Hubbard of Ottawa, O., who passed through Middlesboro Saturday. He says they advised him to that effect though the Knoxville Automobile club advised him to come to Middlesboro via Maynardville and Tazewell.

Mr. Hubbard lived in Middlesboro during its early days. It was here in 1890 that he married. He remained here until 1892. While in Middlesboro he was engaged in the lumber business. Mrs. Hubbard is accompanying him on his trip to Ottowa.

"Last fall there was a solid stream of tourists going to Florida for the winter," he declared, emphasizing the importance of catering to the tourists trade. Most of the tourists from the north, middlewest reached the southern resorts via Washington and Nashville.

Though most of the tourists have already returned to their northern homes, he advises local people to make efforts to have them come this way next year. This is the most logical route, he maintains, and the scenic attractions here in the mountains are much greater than through other sections of the country, he says.

"Residents of the level countries are afraid of mountain roads," Mr. Hubbard declared. "As soon as they find the roads here are entirely passable, and not dangerous they will prefer coming this way."

Roads of Tennessee and Georgia are bad, he says, primarily because there is no system of permanent maintenance. Even the pikes are in a worn and rough condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard have been traveling widely through the country for years and are well informed on road condition, particularly in the south.

They were enthusiastic about the great progress which they found in Middlesboro compared to when they left it and also to the last time they visited here, five years ago. Mr. Hubbard said this was one of the livelist and most attractive towns he had seen in the south.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH REVIVAL OPENS

First Service of Two Weeks' Meeting Tonight—Capable Team In Charge

The opening service of the Christian Church revival will be held at the church at 7:30 o'clock tonight and the services will continue nightly for the next two weeks. The Rev. Delaware W. Scott of Ashland will preach for these services and Miss Kathryn Warriner will have charge of the music. A special choir will be trained by Miss Warriner and will add to the song services planned.

The Rev. Scott, pastor of the Christian Church at Ashland, is considered one of the strongest and most successful pastors in the state and Middlesboro people are particularly anxious to hear this wonderful man who has done so much for the church in Ashland and that section. His sermons are certain to be well worth hearing, all of them.

The quality of Miss Warriner's voice may be judged from a comment made regarding it by Dr. E. E. Violette, famous Kansas City evangelist, who has been conducting services in Danville with Miss Warriner as his song-leader. Dr. Violette, who was heard by a number here when he conducted services at Pineville about two years ago, is quoted in a Danville paper:

"Dr. Violette, who has heard the best soloists in all parts of the world considers Miss Warriner one of the best he has heard and told The Advocate this morning that he would be glad to secure her services for some of the great metropolitan revivals he holds. Danville people will greatly appreciate this high compliment from Dr. Violette, as he is himself a musician far above the average and a choir director with few equals."

SCULPTOR MOLDS TRIBUTE IN SAND TO WIFE AND BABE LOST IN FLOODS

THE MOTHER AND HER BABE IN THE SANDS.

DODGE CITY, Kns., Apr. 28.—A lonely, nameless sculptor wanders up and down the banks of midwestern rivers carrying in wet figures of a mother and her babe.

A melancholy task is his. But it brings him the only comfort his great grief will permit him to enjoy.

The figure of the woman represents his life; the babe, his child. They died in the Pueblo floods two years ago.

Recently the stranger appeared here. Few paid heed to him until they saw him molding his figures in the sand.

Gradually crowds gathered and watched. But hour after hour went by without the stranger apparently noticing them, so absorbed was he in his work.

Slowly the sand assumed the shape of a young mother, washed upon the shore, with her child clasped to her breast.

Onlookers pressed the stranger for an explanation. And here is the tale he told:

"I went to Pueblo, Colo., with my wife and baby, for my health, just a few months before the floods of 1922. We were barly there, it seemed, when the flood came.

"My wife and baby were swept away by the rushing waters. I was, too, but the rescuers succeeded in dragging me out. But they missed my wife and baby.

"Knowing they had been carried downstream, I began my search. I scoured river banks and islands day and night.

"I found them on a sandbar in just the position I have carved them here.

"I often go to the little country churchyard, where they're buried now. But my grief does not find the comfort there that it does when I am molding these figures in the sands."

The stranger, though, refuses to reveal his name or tell from whence he came.

"I have no desire," he says, "to go back to my former home or my old position. I don't want to be bothered with expressions of sympathy from my old friends and associates.

"I just want to be left alone near the waters that stole my wife and baby away from me."

NEW ORLEANS, Apr. 23.—The love of the old negro mammy for her "white chile," immortalized in song and story of the southland, is no figment of the poet's fancy.

Concrete evidence of it can be found today in a last bequest of faithful love that now is puzzling officials and welfare workers.

They indeed have a problem on their hands—a seven-year-old problem with the gentle mannerisms of those children of southern aristocracy.

They call him "Sidney Lanier."

The welfare agents found him, carefully reared in isolation by an old negress in a shack along the Mississippi's bank, near the old plantation where Sidney Lanier, beloved Dixie poet, composed and sang his sweetest songs.

And it was an amazing story Aunt Mimi told the white folks who finally, stirred by strange stories, "came nesticatin' 'roun'."

It was one cold December night, back in 1916, the aged colored woman said, that a white girl, young and beautiful, knocked at the shack's sole door.

The girl, her clothes all muddy and bearing every mark of long travel, asked for shelter. And Aunt Mimi gave it.

Days later a baby was born.

Then one day the young mother prepared to resume her trip—whither Aunt Mimi never knew.

"I'm leaving the baby with you, Auntie," she said.

"Throw him in the river if you want to," she added bitterly.

And from a little leather wristbag she produced five $100 bills and pushed them into Aunt Mimi's hands. Then, without a word, she left the shack. Aunt Mimi never saw her since.

But the old negress was faithful to her trust. Carefully she guarded her adopted child. Carefully she taught him what her long service in southern homes told her should be taught "white chillun."

Gossip, though, was spreading. The officials at last took notice.

The judge of the juvenile court, it happened, once was one of Aunt Mimi's employers. He arranged to have "Sidney Lanier," as Aunt Mimi had christened the boy, taken in at the Waldo Burton Memorial Hall of the Carrollton Avenue Orphan Boys' Home.

He is there now, attending classes at Lafayette School. Twice in just a few months he's been promoted. He's a leader in all athletics. And he'll be king of the school's May Festival.

Nobody's told him yet that Aunt Mimi is dead. She died a few weeks after he was taken away from her.

In a bundle of rags in the old cabin, officials found a savings bank passbook showing $500 had been deposited to the credit of Sidney Lanier—seven years before her death.

And in the hands of a nearby country lawyer they found a will leaving to little Sidney the old shack where he was born and the land upon which it stood.

All of which goes to show the love of the old negro mammy for her "white chile" still is very real in the southland.

I. O. O. F. CHURCH SERVICE YESERDAY

Rev. McClure Preaches Anniversary Sermon for Local Lodge

Nearly 100 Oddfellows and many visitors attended the 105th I. O. O. F. Anniversary service at the M. E. Church, South, yesterday afternoon. The Rev. W. K. McClure, pastor, a member of the order, addressed the men on the subject of "Service."

The Oddfellows met in the hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. There they donned the regalia of the order and marched in a body to the church where they occupied the center of the auditorium.

The speaker declared that the prime purpose of the three-link order is service. He spoke of the good work being done by the order in the way of caring for widows and orphans and visiting the sick. "With the Oddfellows," he declared, "business is of secondary importance; service comes first." A musical feature of the program was a solo by Miss Winnie Pippin.

STOP PENALTY, SAY WOMEN COMMONERS

Capital Punishments to go if English Women of House Can Sway

Associated Press

LONDON, April 28.—For the abolition of capital punishment and to substitute other penalties, a private members bill has been framed and is backed by Mrs. Wintringham, Miss Jewson, George Lansbury and other members of the House of Commons.

In the case of murder or treason the penalty proposed in the bill will be penal servitude for life. The sentence is to be a fixed one, subject to the qualification that if the jury has recommended the convicted person to mercy, the court of Criminal Appeal may reduce the term of servitude to any shorter term not less than ten years.

In cases other than murder or treason, the court may pass a sentence of penal servitude for life, or imprisonment with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding two years.

The bill does not affect any liability under naval or military law. The liability of persons under 16 remains unaltered.

Proposed Postal Increase Effects Ten

An increase in the salary of postal employes amounting to twenty-five dollars per month which would affect ten local men is being urged by the house and senate sub-committees, according to reports from Washington.

The sub-committee's recommendation will include only salary increases and will not take into account any boosting of postal rates to provide funds for higher wages. Postmaster General New recommended adjustments according to localities to meet increased living costs and the pay given individuals ding similar work in the commercial field.

Postmaster John M. Miller expects that an increase of some nature will result fro mthe bills now pending. Members of both the house and senate are said to be agreed that an increase should be granted.

His Greatest Work

Here is the painting made by Howard Chandler Christie of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, first lady of the land.

By light-years is meant the number of years required for light to travel from a star to us.

The total output of coal for the world in 1922 was 1,332,000,000 short tons.

Begs Father to Hang Man Who Killed Her Brother

W. H. GROSH, AND HIS CABIN HOME

MIAMI, Ariz., Apr. 28.—"He killed my boy. Now I'm going to kill him."

W. H. Grosh is going to make good his boast—and with the law's consent.

He will spring the trap at the hanging of William D. Ward, negro slayer of his son, Theodore Wilbur (Ted) Grosh.

The execution is scheduled to be held at the Arizona state penitentiary in Florence, June 20.

But Grosh wil not get to see Ward die. The hangman's lever is hiden from view of the gallows.

"I am satisfied, though," he insists. "I'll see him a few seconds later, and then I will know he is dead. I'll know I killed him!

"Everything I have done in my life has been prompted by my love for my six children. For years I worked in the mines to send them to school.

"I have been both father and mother to them since their mother died when Musa May (his youngest child) was only . That was 15 years ago.

"Now I have a little garage and this cabin—a place they could always call home. But Ted never will come home again.

"I am going to hang this man through love for my dead boy and Musa May. She wants me to kill him, too. Every night before she goes to sleep she makes me promise we'll get even. And we will!"

"Ted" Grosh, a sophomore at the University of Arizona, was murdered while returning home from a dance during the Christmas holidays. The girl he was with was assaulted and left for dead after her assailant had fired two bullets into her head.

Ward was arrested late the next day. A jury in an adjoining county convicted him in just 16 minutes.

"PAY YOUR BILLS"

ONLY WAY TO KEEP CREDIT GOOD

YOUR personal credit rating in the stores at which you have charge accounts is not a fixed and permanent proposition. Every month your standing becomes better, or it grows worse. It all depends on how you pay.

IF, for example, the occasion should arise when you needed to "charge" a purchase that represented a much larger amount than your monthly bills ordinarily come to, what should happen?

THE credit man, who says "Yes" or "No" to every credit sales slip that comes to the office from all parts of the store, would go to the page in the ledger on which your accounts are recorded. Should he find that your account was marked "Paid" promptly each month, he would strain a point to "Pass the charge" and let you have the merchandise you wanted.

BUT if the record of your charge dealings in past years showed that you took two or three months or more to settle your accounts, he would almost certainly have to decline to take the chance.

PAY your bills and pay them promptly. No matter whether they are large or small, no matter whether you are a frequent buyer or only an occasional buyer, your credit rating depends altogether on the way you pay.

"If they don't know where I am," explains Shocker, "it's probably because I didn't tell them."

CHARLE SMIRKE

LONDON, April 28.—England has its own Ivan Parke. His name happens to be Charles Smirke. He is a 17-year-old stripling and weighs only 84 pounds. In three years he has ridden more than 100 winners, and local turf critics predict he will ultimately outshine Steve Donoghue, current idol of the bettors.

Smirke, like Parke, the American youngster, started riding as a tiny lad and, again like the Idaho star, was a sensation right off the reel, or stirrup, if you will.

His dad wanted him to be a fighter, but Smirke's love for the saddle won out.

P. T. Anderson, age about 45, was killed by a train at the north end of the L. & N. yards early Sunday morning. railroad officials say that details of his death are not known. A train crew discovered the mangled body at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning lying at the side of the track but no report was given as to the train which struck him and caused his death. They're Firm Friends

The four legged hero of the south today is, strangely enough, named "Trouble." The faithful 3-year-old collie saved the lives of Virginia Hastings (who is shown with him in the picture) and Harvey Alexander, aged 4, when the two children were attacked by vicious hogs on the Hastings farm near Jonesboro, Ga. The swine had chewed an ear from the Alexander child and were menacing the little girl when the dog arrived and drove them off.

Completion of the stretch has been promised within the next few weeks.

The Barbourville to Corbin detour road is in good condition, the motorists say, although they said a hard rain would make it less passable.

DISCUSS TYPES STREET PAVING

City Commissioners in Meeting Today Talk of Proposed Improvements

Discussion as to the type of paving to adopt for the fifty blocks of streets and alleys included in the contract let Saturday took place at a meeting of the commissioners this afternoon.

At 3 o'clock the meeting was still in progress though it was practically decided that Kentucky rock asphalt would be used, with possibly a few exceptions, instead of concrete. Sidewalks will be constructed where property owners so desire.

Twenty-first and Nineteenth streets and Exeter avenue will be improved by resurfacing instead of being rebuilt entirely, it is understood.

The mayor did not arrive in Middlesboro until late this morning and the commissioners' meeting was postponed until 2 o'clock this afternoon, action being taken only on a few minor matters.

The ordinance making the recently revised city laws the penal codes of the city passed the second reading. The application of Henry Woods for a position on the Middlesboro police force was read and filed. A petition that a house on Exeter avenu which was termed a "menace to the neighborhood" be removed, was read. The matter will be referred to the chief of police who will report to the mayor.

Temple of Death

This is the Temple of Death, near St. Francis Leon, Mexico. A tourist recently ran across it, and succeeded in getting this picture.

It was Children's Day in a Detroit movie theatre. A wild west thriller was being shown. There was lots of shooting going on. But more was to follow that the kids didn't know about. A woman rose from her seat. Three shots rang out. The organist, Sigmund Rosen (left), slumped over his keys. The woman raised a bottle to her lips, cried out in pain, then fell over unconscious. A panic was narrowly averted. At the hospital it was found the woman was Rosen's estranged wife (right). Both she and her husband are in a critical condition.
